The Interstate Umpires Association honored St. Andrew's with the 2014 "Rocky Salvatore" Sportsmanship Award during a ceremony before the annual Blue-Gold All-Star game in June.

The award, voted on by the state's umpires, recognizes the team who exhibits fair play, sporting behavior and adherence to the laws of the game. This is the fourth year St. Andrew's has won the award, the most of any school. St. Andrew's won the inaugural award in 1995.

"Sports at St. Andrew's has always been about more than winning and losing," said athletic director emeritus and varsity baseball coach Bob Colburn. "We learn life lessons about honor, hard work, and, of course, sportsmanship. I'm proud of the many successes we had this year as a team, but most of all, I'm proud of how the players conducted themselves on and off the field this spring."
